

Overview of project

The Michigan Department of Transportation is investing $115 million to preserve more than eight miles of local and express lanes on eastbound and westbound I-96 (Jeffries Freeway) in Detroit. The entire project extends from the M-39 (Southfield Freeway) interchange to the I-75 interchange, and includes repairs to 47 bridges and improvements to the I-96/I-94 and I-96/M-39 interchanges.

There are four major components to the project:

- 1 Reconstruct and resurface eastbound and westbound I-96 local and express lanes between M-39 interchange and Davison Avenue from February through December. Close eastbound and westbound local lanes from March through mid-August with traffic maintained on express lanes. Close eastbound and westbound express lanes with traffic maintained on newly constructed local lanes Mid-August through December.
- 2 Resurface eastbound and westbound I-96 between Davison Avenue and Roosevelt Street via lane closures from May through November. Two lanes will remain open in each direction during the project.
- 3 Reconstruct eastbound and westbound I-96 between Roosevelt Street and Warren Avenue via lane closures from February through September. Two lanes will remain open in each direction during the reconstruction. All ramps at the I-96/I-94 interchange will close with the exception of the ramp from eastbound I-96 to eastbound and westbound I-94.
- 4 Reconstruct eastbound I-96 from Vernor Highway to I-75 from May through August. One lane will remain open on eastbound I-96 throughout duration of the project.
